

• Male entry draws attention

The entry of a male in the race for the New Mexico State Homecoming Queen has caused some controversy on campus.

The participant, Aaron Shubert, was nominated by Lesbians, Gays, Bisexuals and Friends, and is drawing support from students and other candidates.

Shubert said with his candidacy, he wants to bring attention to homophobia on campus.

"This is pretty out-of-character for me, I'm usually a private person." Shubert said. "But when people are discriminated against, it's important to bring it to the light."
